The Bowditch Family of Salem, Massachusetts

Introduction 1417525

THE ancestry of William Bowditch who came to Salem, Massachusetts in 1671 has been proved as far back as the early sixteenth century⁽¹⁾, in the parish of Thorncombe, co. Devon. That this family was connected with the very ancient family of Bowditch of Chardstock, co. Dorset, is indicated by the fact that in 1605 Robert Bowditch, brother to George whose descendant came to Salem, sealed with the crest of arrows belonging to the Chardstock line; Thorncombe and Chardstock are only a few miles apart, and public use of the crest amounted to a claim of relationship, a claim recognized by the College of Arms. Just when and in what person the Thorncombe line branched off from the Chardstock line will probably not be discovered unless by accident, for the period is one of great difficulty in genealogical research and neither family was sufficiently prominent to figure in public records.

The Chardstock line is recorded through sixteen generations in the Visitation of Dorset in 1632⁽²⁾, indicating an origin in about the first half of the twelfth century. Such a long pedigree at once excites suspicion; but the facts that there is no tying-in with great names, as is always the case in the pedigrees concocted in the "spacious days of Good Queen Bess", and that it falls short of the time of the Norman Conquest, lead one to an acceptance of the facts stated, supported as they are by deeds preserved in the College of Arms; the family was too obscure to have made forgery of deeds in any way probable.

The earliest spelling of the family name heads the Chardstock pedigree—Osmerus de Bunedich. The Rev. Richard Grosvenor Bartelot, Rector of St. George's in Fordington, the accepted authority on the antiquities of this region, has given it as his opinion that the name means bourn-or boundary-ditch, and in fact Bowditch Farm, Bowditch Common, Bowditch Manor, etc., places all close together and evidently the cradle of the family, near Chardstock, lie near to a large prehistoric ditch which separated the hostile tribes in Dorset and in Somerset; traces of this ditch are still to be discerned. The “de” preceding the name simply means “of”; that is, Osmerus (or Hosmer) of Boundary-ditch, indicating his place of residence or of origin.

The earliest record of a coat of arms belonging to the Bowditch family is found in the Visitation of Dorset, 1623; it is described as “Argent, a fess wavy between three bows paleways gules stringed or”, that is, a white shield crossed horizontally by a wavy red band between three (two above, one below) erect red bows with yellow bowstrings; the crest is given, in the printed version, as “Five arrows, one in pale and four in saltire, heads downwards, or, feathered gules”, that is, five yellow arrows with red feathers, heads downwards, one erect and four crossing it diagonally. Whether the four all crossed at one point, or were placed two and two parallel, is not stated, and presumably each artist would decide this for himself. With regard to the coloring of the arrows, the printed version of the Visitation appears to be incorrect, for the manuscript in the College of Arms makes the shafts yellow and the feathers white, not red; this is also true in the manuscript of the Visitation of Dorset in 1677, also in the College of Arms and never printed. In neither case is there any indication of the color of the arrow-heads. As has been said, the crest was used in 1605 by Robert Bowditch of the Thorncombe line, and as a crest presupposes a coat of arms the arms must be at least as old as this. They are of the so-called “allusive” type, the bows indicating the first syllable of the name; it has been stated, too, that the wavy fess is meant for a ditch, and this may be true.

Probably not earlier than 1845 or so Nathaniel I. Bowditch obtained from England a small water-color painting of the arms and crest; the latter shows seven instead of five arrows, and consequently seven arrows have always been used in our family. This painting, of unknown origin, but judging from its style presumably taken from somebody’s book-plate, has also furnished our family with the motto Spes Durat Avorum; in England this is known as the motto of the Earl of Rochford, of the family of Nassau-de-Zulestein, from Utrecht, Netherlands. A manuscript note in a copy of Edmondson’s “Complete Body of Heraldry” (1780) attributes the same motto to “W. Francis”, so there is nothing distinctive about it.

The following pedigree is based on the results of a good many years of research. Nathaniel I. Bowditch was the first to become interested, and worked on the early generations in Salem. On his death in 1861 his material was worked over by his nephew Charles P. Bowditch, who added a large amount, instituted search in England, and brought the family chart down to 1918. In this year the researches of George A. Moriarty (descended from John, second son of Capt. Ebenezer Bowditch) were published, proving the descent of William Bowditch, the immigrant to Salem, from John Bowditch of Thorncombe who died in 1563. Later research by Mr. Moriarty and by Mr. A. T. Butler, an officer of the College of Arms, has added one generation, possibly two. Ernest W. Bowditch was interested in the story of the family and has left much material, chiefly biographical or concerned with land holdings. Vincent Y. Bowditch has left a description of his visit to Chardstock.

Chardstock was visited by Henry I. Bowditch and J. Ingersoll Bowditch in 1870; by Vincent Y. and Olivia Bowditch, who also visited Thorncombe, in 1912; by John P. Bowditch in 1922; and by Harold and Martha Bowditch in 1928. The last-named also went to the village of Thorncombe, and, in the parish of Thorncombe, visited Holditch Court, which was the home of the earliest known generations of our family: Robert and his son lived there, presumably as tenants, and then it was bought by two of John's sons, John and Robert, jointly; their brother George was the progenitor of the Salem family of Bowditch. Of the original building practically nothing remains today except a ruined tower covered with ivy, a picture of which accompanies this paper.

As this list has been prepared for the use of the descendants of Nathaniel Bowditch, author of The Navigator, it has seemed unnecessary to follow out collateral lines in his ancestry; on the other hand, the effort has been made to include every one of his descendants, in the female as well as in the male lines.

The system of numeration commonly employed, whereby only those individuals receive numbers whose accounts are given on subsequent pages, is suitable only for the generations which have passed into history; for those still in the making something in the nature of a loose-leaf note-book is needed, and is here attempted. The first of the line receives the number 1; his children are numbered 1.1, 1.2, etc. according to the order of their birth; the children of 1.1 are 1.1.1, 1.1.2, etc., and the children of 1.2 are 1.2.1, 1.2.2, etc., and so on. By employing such a system one may tell at a glance, by the number of digits in the number, to which generation any individual belongs; one may learn the number of any individual's parent by leaving off the last digit, of his grandparent by leaving off two, etc.; the position of each individual among his brothers and sisters is shown by the last digit; and the relationships between individuals are made clear. Thus, two individuals whose numbers are the same except for the last digit must be brothers, sisters, or brother and sister; if they are the same except for the last two digits, they must be first cousins; except for the last three, second cousins, and so on. The disadvantage of this system is that in course of time such long numbers are built up that they are hard to memorize; yet the advantages seem to me to outweigh the disadvantages. For the sake of clearness I have preceded the numbers of the English ancestors with the letter E, and with the emigration to America the emigrant William Bowditch's long number has been replaced with the number 1 ; this, because it is of more interest to most of us to know how many generations we are removed from the emigrant than from the earliest known ancestor in England.

John

For the sake of brevity the accounts of childless couples have not been carried forward, so that their statistics will be found on the same page as those of their parents ; in the case of the younger generations, however, where children may still be expected, the accounts have been carried forward.

All places mentioned are understood to be in Massachusetts unless otherwise specified or unless the context makes it clear.

Bringing the account of the family up to date has been the work of about nine months. The compiler has kept records since the publication of Charles P. Bowditch's last charts in 1918, based on statements by members of the family, wedding invitations, etc., and in the preparation of this genealogical sketch he has corresponded with many members of the clan. To them thanks are due, although in a few instances unwillingness to answer repeated inquiries has necessitated the omission of data which should have been included. In such a work mistakes are inevitable, for only by depending upon original records can they be avoided, and for such research the compiler has no time ; so it is offered to the family with regret for omissions and mistakes but with a hearty wish for a Merry Christmas at the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Christmas Party.

English Ancestry

E 1.

ROBERT BOWDITCH of Thorncombe, a parish which was formerly included in co. Devon but is now in co. Dorset, England, was assessed 2s. 6d. on goods valued at £5. in the subsidy of 20 January 1524/5, but does not appear in later subsidies. The appearance of a Robert Bowditch jr. at the same time and place leads to the inference that Robert sr. and Robert jr. were father and son, but the point is not proved beyond all doubt; hence we must say that the relationship is only probable.

E 1.1.

ROBERT BOWDITCH of Holditch Court, Thorncombe, co. Devon, was assessed 2s. on goods valued at £4. in the subsidy of 20 January 1524/5, 15s. on goods valued at £30. in the subsidy of 1540/41, 13s. 4d. on goods in the subsidy of 1543/4, as a benevolence, in 1546, and 16s. on property valued at £16. in the subsidy of 24 November 1548. He d. before 20 March 1551/2. The name of his wife is unknown.

WILLIAM BOWDITCH of Thorncombe, co. Devon, clothier, baptized at Thorncombe 26 December 1639, d. at Salem, Massachusetts, 1681. As this William Bowditch is the immigrant ancestor of the Bowditch family of Salem, his history will be taken up in greater detail under No. 1, below.

American Family

First Generation

1.

WILLIAM BOWDITCH, baptized at Thorncombe, co. Devon, England, 26 December 1639. He made his will 31 March 1671, intending "to goe to sea in the good shipp called John" of Topsham, co. Devon, intending also to return, which he never did. He appears in Salem, Massachusetts, in November, 1671, and in 1674 is referred to as in the employ of "Mr. Curen", who appears to have been Capt. George Corwin. William Bowditch was appointed Collector of Salem and is regularly referred to as "Mr." Bowditch, in distinction from the humbler epithet of "Goodman". When William Bowditch made his will he referred to himself as a clothier, the business in which so many men in England at that time rose to affluence; but he does not seem to have done so, for a law-suit of 1699/1700 shows that the expense of caring for two of his children was in large part borne by his father. At some time William Bowditch appears to have lived at Lyme Regis, for his only son William was born there about 1665. In 1676 he was presented to the Court in Salem for living apart from his wife, but gave satisfaction and was dismissed. He had married at Bothenhampton, co. Dorset, 15 September 1663, Sarah Bear of Wayford, co. Somerset, and about the year 1679 she came to join him in Salem with their only son William. Her habits were not good, and she was addicted to strong drink, which may account for William's lack of prosperity. In 1678 he joined several others in the project of building a wind-mill at Marblehead, but ill luck still pursued him and the stones refused to turn; the original cost of the mill in 1678 was £160., and in 1681 William Bowditch's $\frac{5}{8}$ share was assessed at £20., making the value of the mill in that year only £32. The date of death of William Bowditch is not known; the records of the General Court held at Boston 12 October 1681 state that "Mr. Willjam Boudish, who was imployed as collector for the country at Salem, is come to a suddaine & vntimely death", and administration on the estate of "William Bowdish who died intestate" (his will being filed in England) was granted in Essex County 24 October 1681 to Philip Cromwell, to whom William Bowditch had mortgaged his land at Salem and his ketches for £400. in 1679. William Bowditch's financial reverses, the known bad habits of his wife, his sudden death, and the promptness with which the authorities looked into his affairs after his death, all suggest the possibility of his having committed suicide, and in one branch of the family it is traditional that this was the fact. His widow survived him for many years, and his son eventually proved his will at Exeter, co. Devon, 6 November 1705.

Children:

- 1.1. William Bowditch—see below.
- 1.2. Sarah Bowditch, m. John Crow in England.
- 1.3. Joan Bowditch, m. Matthew Staple in England.

Second Generation

1.1.

WILLIAM BOWDITCH, b. at Lyme Regis, co. Dorset, England, about 1655; came to Salem, Massachusetts, with his mother about 1679; became a mariner and merchant, and was known as Captain Bowditch. He was a selectman, a representative to the General Court, and treasurer of the Union Wharf proprietors. In 1696 he was captain of the sloop "Mayflower"; about 1700 his ship, the "Essex Galley" was wrecked on Tenapoo Reef (then uncharted) in Salem Harbor, since then known as Bowditch's Ledge; and in 1706 he was captain of the ship "America". He m. in Salem, 30 August 1688, Mary, the daughter of Lieut. Thomas Gardner and Mary (Porter) Gardner of Salem; she was b. 14 February 1669/70 and d. in May 1724. Capt. Bowditch owned land in Dunstable which was sold by his heirs in 1742. He d. in Salem 28 May 1728 and was buried beside his wife in the Charter Street Burying Ground, where the stones are still to be seen.

Children (all born in Salem):

- 1.1.1. Mary Bowditch, b. and d. 1689.
- 1.1.2. William Bowditch, b. 1690, d. 1706.
- 1.1.3. Mary Bowditch, b. 1693, d. s.p. 1723/4; m. (1) James Butler, (2) Samuel Barton.
- 1.1.4. Sarah Bowditch, b. 1695/6, d. 1761; m. Joseph Hathorne and had nine children.
- 1.1.5. Thomas Bowditch, b. 1698, d. 1702.
- 1.1.6. Joseph Bowditch, b. 1700, d. 1780; m. Elizabeth Hunt and had eight children.
- 1.1.7. Ebenezer Bowditch—see below.
- 1.1.8. Eunice Bowditch, b. and d. 1705.
- 1.1.9. Eunice Bowditch, b. 1707, d. 1764; m. William Hunt and had ten children.
- 1.1.10. Daniel Bowditch, b. 1709, d. unm. ca. 1730.
- 1.1.11. William Bowditch, b. 1712/13, d. 1715.

Third Generation

1.1.7.

EBENEZER BOWDITCH, b. in Salem 26 April 1702 or 1703; d. 2 February 1768. Shipmaster, known as Captain Bowditch. He lost the armed galley "Mary" in a hurricane at Port Royal, Jamaica, 22 October 1726. He lived at the spot later designated 209 Essex Street in Salem. He appears to have been a proprietor but not a settler of New Salem, Massachusetts, in 1742. On the 15th of August 1728 he m. Mary, the daughter of the Hon. Col. John Turner and Mary (Kitchen) Turner of Salem; she was b. in November 1706 and d. 1 May 1785; although but 22 years old at marriage she was spoken of as "the ancient and honorable Miss Turner". Ebenezer Bowditch seems to have inherited his grandfather's faculty of being unfortunate in money matters, for it is stated that in addition to losing his own fortune he borrowed and lost the savings of his son Habakkuk. Ebenezer Bowditch was the only son of his parents' large household who has left male descendants, and so is the common ancestor of all by the name of Bowditch who are derived from the Salem line.

Children (all born in Salem):

- 1.1.7.1. Ebenezer Bowditch, b. 1729, d. 1771; m. Elizabeth Gilman and had eight children.
- 1.1.7.2. John Bowditch, b. 1732, d. 1793? (went South in that year and was never heard from); m. Mary Carlton and had seven children.
- 1.1.7.3. Thomas Bowditch, b. ca. 1733, d. 1808; m. Sarah Bancroft and had eleven children. Ancestor of the South Carolina (or senior) line of the family.
- 1.1.7.4. William Bowditch, b. 1734 or 1735; d. unm. 1752.
- 1.1.7.5. Habakkuk Bowditch—see below.
- 1.1.7.6. Mary Bowditch, b. ca. 1741, d. unm. 1757.

Fourth Generation

1.1.7.5.

HABAKKUK BOWDITCH, born in Salem 5 January and baptized there 5 March 1737/8; d. there 28 July 1798. He was a mariner, but was spoken of as Captain Bowditch; later he became a cooper. He lived in a house on Brown Street, still standing but greatly altered and moved back from the street, where his son Nathaniel was born; in 1773 he moved to a small house in Salem Village, later called Danvers and now a part of Peabody; this is still standing and is marked by a tablet as the home of Nathaniel Bowditch as a child. Habakkuk Bowditch is said to have been "uncommonly versed in the Scriptures". Ill luck attended him; his father is said to have borrowed and lost his savings and losses in the Revolutionary War finished his ruin; he took to drink and ran downhill. He m. 23 July 1765 Mary, the daughter of Nathaniel Ingersoll and Bethiah (Gardner) Ingersoll of Salem; the date of her birth is uncertain, and she d. 16 December 1783.

Children (1-4 and 7 born in Salem, 5 and 6 in Danvers):

- 1.1.7.5.1. Mary Bowditch, b. 1766, d. 1808; m. David Martin and had two children.
- 1.1.7.5.2. Habakkuk Bowditch, b. 1768, d. unm. ca. 1800.
- 1.1.7.5.3. Elizabeth Bowditch, b. 1771, d. unm. 1791.
- 1.1.7.5.4. Nathaniel Bowditch—see below.
- 1.1.7.5.5. William Bowditch, b. 1776, d. unm. 1799.
- 1.1.7.5.6. Samuel Ingersoll Bowditch, b. 1778, d. unm. 1794.
- 1.1.7.5.7. Lois Bowditch, b. 1781, d. s. p. 1809; m. her cousin Joseph Bowditch, son of Thomas Bowditch, son of Ebenezer Bowditch, 1.1.7.

Fifth Generation

1.1.7.5.4.

NATHANIEL BOWDITCH, born in Salem 26 March 1773, died in Boston 16 March 1838. He was born in the house occupied by his father at No. 2 Brown Street, subsequently moved to the back of the lot and turned round, and still standing, though greatly altered, on Kimball's Court; the year of his birth the family moved to Danvers and the little house that they occupied is still standing, though now in a part of Peabody, and marked by a tablet. Nathaniel Bowditch was the author of the "New American Practical Navigator" (1802); president of the Essex Fire and Marine Insurance Co. in Salem, 1804 to 1823; in the latter year he moved to Boston in order to take up his work as actuary and from 1824 director of the Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance Co., a position which he filled until his death. During these years he translated, with copious commentaries, Laplace's "Mécanique Céleste", the work which brought him his reputation as a mathematician. He was offered, but declined, the professorship of mathematics at Harvard College, and received from Harvard two honorary degrees, A. M. in 1802 and LL. D. in 1816. He served on the Board of Overseers of Harvard College from 1810 to 1826, and was a Fellow from 1826 until his death. His home in Salem was on Essex Street, near the so-called "Witch House", and in Boston he lived at No. 8 Otis Place, near Church Green; the widening of the street has wholly done away with Otis Place. Nathaniel Bowditch married (1) in Salem 25 March 1798, Elizabeth Boardman, the daughter of Capt. Francis Boardman and Mary (Hodges) Boardman of Salem; she was b. about 1780 and d. s. p. 18 October 1798; he m. (2) in Danvers 28 October 1800 his first cousin Mary Ingersoll, the daughter of Capt. Jonathan Ingersoll and Mary (Hodges) Ingersoll of Danvers; she was b. 4 December 1781 and d. in Boston 17 April 1834.

Children (all born in Salem, and by second wife):

1.1.7.5.4. Nathaniel Ingersoll Bowditch, 1805–1861; m. Elizabeth
1. Brown Francis.

1.1.7.5.4. Jonathan Ingersoll Bowditch, 1806–1889; m. Lucy Orne
2. Nichols.

1.1.7.5.4. Henry Ingersoll Bowditch, 1808–1892; m. Olivia Yardley.
3.

1.1.7.5.4. Charles Ingersoll Bowditch, b. 1 December 1809, d. in
4. Salem 21 February 1820.

1.1.7.5.4. A son, born 7 July 1813, died the next day.
5.

1.1.7.5.4. Mary Ingersoll Bowditch, 1816–1893; m. Epes Sargent
6. Dixwell.

1.1.7.5.4. William Ingersoll Bowditch, 1819–1909; m. Sarah Rhea
7. Higginson.

1.1.7.5.4. Elizabeth Boardman Ingersoll Bowditch, 1823–1888; m.
8. John James Dixwell.

Sixth Generation

1.1.7.5.4.

NATHANIEL INGERSOLL BOWDITCH, b. Salem 17 January 1805, d. Brookline 16 April 1861. A. B. (Harv.) 1822, A. M. (Harv.) 1825. Married 23 April 1835 Elizabeth Brown Francis, daughter of Ebenezer Francis and Elizabeth (Thorndike) Francis of Brookline; she was b. 25 November 1807 and d. 16 January 1892. Nathaniel I. Bowditch was a conveyancer and trustee; author of articles signed "Gleaner" on genealogy, land-titles, etc., in the Boston Transcript, 1855, of "Suffolk Surnames" 1857, and of the "History of the Massachusetts General Hospital" 1851; transcriber of many volumes of land-titles preserved by the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Children:

- 1.1.7.5.4. Elizabeth Francis Bowditch, b. 1836, d. 1924; m. (1)
1.1. Richard S. Fay, (2) Gardner G. Hammond.
- 1.1.7.5.4. Mary Ingersoll Bowditch, b. 1838, d. 1874; m. William
1.2. Crowninshield Rogers.
- 1.1.7.5.4. Ebenezer Francis Bowditch, b. 1841, d. 1891; m. Elizabeth
1.3. F. Perry.
- 1.1.7.5.4. Alice Francis Bowditch, b. 1848, d. 1929; m. James Murray
1.4. Forbes.

1.1.7.5.4.

JONATHAN INGERSOLL BOWDITCH, b. Salem 15 October 1806, d. Jamaica Plain 19 February 1889. A. M. (hon.) 1849 and LL. D. (hon.) 1886 (Harv.), Overseer 1867-1873. Married 25 May 1836 Lucy Orne Nichols, daughter of Benjamin Ropes Nichols and Mary (Pickering) Nichols; she was b. 23 June 1816 and d. Boston 24 April 1883. J.
